Pat's Corner

Several weeks ago I shared mission statements from area UCC churches in the hope of encouraging conversation and reflection about KCC's mission statement.

Interestingly, I received just ONE comment via e-mail. In contrast, when I shared thoughts about our welcome statement my "inbox" was filled with comments and within six weeks we revised our welcome statement.

The contrast is striking and I'm sure more complicated than what appears on the surface. At the very least it suggests how challenging it is to rethink how we understand what God is calling us to do and be in the next few years.

However, that is THE question before us as we prepare to search for a new pastor. In order to know WHO is the right person, we have to know WHAT we are all about as a community of faith. What is the most important thing for KCC to do in the next five years in the local community, as citizens in the world wide community, as members of a covenant community bound to one another? I encourage you to think and pray and talk about these questions. The future of KCC depends on our answers.

In Faith,

Pastor Pat
